THE INTERCOLLEGIATE FLYING ASSOCIATION was formed in December 1919, by representatives from the Aero Clubs of five Colleges, for the purpose of maintaining and building up the spirit and interest of Aviation among College men, and for the binding together of these flyers into a unified, organized body.

It is our purpose to help to establish and maintain active Flying Clubs in every College in the United States, in order that our many service flyers may keep in touch with each other and with Aviation, and in order that we may build up the interest among future College men.

We wish to acknowledge appreciation for the assistance rendered us in developing our enterprise, to the U. S. Air Service as represented by Colonel G. C. Brant, Lt. Col. H. E. Hartney, Lt. Col. H. M. Hickam and their associates; to the American Flying Club as directed by its President, Mr. Laurence La T. Driggs; and to the many others represented in our list of Judges, who have aided us financially and by means of their own time and effort, in bringing our project to a successful conclusion.

PAST AND FUTURE

When I was through with war and strife and finished with the army,

I said, "Henceforth my style of life is one that cannot harm me;
No, not for me the speedy plane I used to spot the Hun with;
A second-handed little Ford will do to have my fun with.
This thing of dodging through the skies has made me tense and nervous.

I'll make my tours in Pullman trains when I am through the service,

And bump to work in trolley cars like other city dwellers,
And thank my stars I'm not behind the blast of air-propellers.

But now — I'm thinking of the bus I used to roam the sky in,
That roaring, darting combat Spad that once was mine to fly in,
For she was swift and sure and true, a lulu and a darling,
And in my dreams I zoom aloft, I hear the motor snarling.
Ah, that was living like a man! a game of zest and danger,
While here, in all this humdrum round I feel myself a stranger.
Does someone seek the rainbow's end — the gold that lurks below there?

If I can have a plane to drive, I'll take the chance and go there!
A plane that's trim and swift and slim, as through the clouds I weave her

And till I crash in one last smash, you won't get me to leave her!
